HOW WE RUN A HOUSE

Small on purpose

Six to ten residents per house. Big enough for a real community, small enough that your absence is noticed the same day.

Structure you can feel

Curfew, chores, house meetings, and random testing. Not to punish — because the shape of a day is the thing most of us lost first.

Peer-led, not managed

House leaders are residents who've been where you are. Staff support the house; the house runs itself. That's the part that sticks.

Honest about money

One clear rate per house, posted publicly. No intake fee, no surprise charges. If you hit a rough patch, come talk to us before you disappear.

WHAT THE FIRST NINETY DAYS LOOK LIKE

01 You reach out

A phone call or a form at 3am. We answer, we ask a few questions, and we tell you straight whether we have a bed and whether we're the right fit. If we're not, we'll tell you who is.

02 You move in

Usually within 48 hours. You get a bed, a key, a drawer, and a house that already knows your name. First week you're just finding the coffee.

03 You find footing

Weekly house meeting, daily check-in, a curfew that loosens as you earn it. We help you get to work, to meetings, to court if that's where you need to be.

04 You go the distance

Most people stay six to nine months. Some become house leaders. Some move out and come back for Sunday dinner. The door doesn't close behind you.
